

Watchdog agencies in Australia are increasing and look like they are here for the long haul. This indicates that corruption and integrity issues in both business and government have not been subverted. Some of these agencies have been active for many many years. Must vigilance go on forever or is cornering corruption a lost cause?

Here is a unique opportunity where the Heads of three key integrity agencies come together to speak about integrity & corruption issues that afflict Australians today. A great way to start your day!
